Introduction

The community engagement course provides students with learning experiences and research opportunities that are relevant to their fields of study and create value for our community partners. People are seeking ways to affect change in their communities both locally and around the world. Now a days, CEC provided for school and college students, who wants to work more effectively with community members and organizations. This course help students to get more out of the experience by engaging with communities ethically, respectfully and sustainably. This course is designed to be both engaging and challenging, offering an accessible entry into foundational topics as well as a jumping off point to pursue work and further learning in effective community engagement. It is also a toolkit and a roadmap that offers concrete take aways and resources for working effectively with communities. Throughout the course, students will learn more from society, experienced persons, community partners, need and limitations of society and also try to identify and rectify their problems as well as create awareness to develop the present and future society.

Introduction :

Second year zoology students from our college through the CEC(Community Engagement Course)class went to a small village called thollavilai where we divided into five groups. Each group was given a topic and our group got the topic 'Self Help up'. Our group members were vinnarasi, mathija, Sr. Anto monisha, aleshsumi, karunya. we visited fifteen houses on the first day and sixteen on the second. We met the women in every house and asked them what self help group is and whether it is useful for them. Everyone responded with kindness and patience. All the women gave the same answer. SHGs (Self Help Group) are a good opportunity for women. Life is very difficult. A 'women self help group scheme' is found to give little leisure in such a life. Every town has more than 20-25 people in each group.

Introduction:

Data collection is taking information from a source, usually to gain insights into a specific topic. Data collection traditionally referred to field through surveys, focus groups. Information contaminates every initiative you undertake with that data downstream.

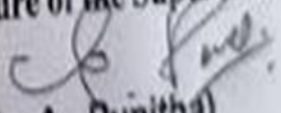

Meanwhile, gathering too much data without a clear purpose or from unknown sources causes data quality issues. Data collection is the process of gathering and measuring information on variables of interest, in an established systematic fashion that enables one to answer stated research questions, data collection strategies, it is important to develop the specific questions that the evaluation will address. Evaluation questions should be reasonable, answerable, and appropriate given the program's process and outcomes. Well-defined evaluation questions consider the purpose of the evaluation, intended use of the results, the needs of stakeholders, and the real world circumstances that influence program success. Important contextual information for rural areas includes local beliefs and behaviors, system capabilities, and limitations regarding capacity, technology, and needed resources.

From our management we went to Thollavilai to collect data from peoples who were living in Thollavilai. Data collection is use to collect all details from the people who communicates with us by answering our questions. Thollavilai is a rural area. In Thollavilai there are nearly 600 peoples were living. Collecting data is our main work given by our management. We have to interact with peoples in Thollavilai. So our team collected data on September 27th to October 8th during Saturday's from morning 9.30am to evening
