TRAGEDY.

From the earliest times drama has been divided into two kinds → Tragedy and Comedy. Tragedy deals with the dark side of the life. It aims at inspiring us with pity and awe. It impels towards an unhappy fate.

It deals with characters of high birth and station, kings, princes and their households. Their misfortunes equally deserve our pity. The humble men suffer a lot. The fall of a king, dynasty is bound to be more impressive to the spectator.

African women

Compared to other countries,
African women are the real beauties,
It doesn't matter the color,
It depends upon their tradition,
And their beautiful fusion..
Curly hair makes them gorgeous,
Even plaited or stitched in the head,
Decorated their hands with bangles or clothes,
They are indeed different.
African women wears big or small earrings in the ears,
And wanders in other places,
Seeking for happiness,
Many women are suffering from poverty,
And being traded for money,
Some women are seeking for help,
Even though they are deserved to be protected
And lead a good life

Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night

October 20, 2023

The poem "Don Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night" was written by Dylan Thomas, a Welsh poet and writer. The poem is considered to be one of his famous works and the significant aspect about this poem is that the usage of Villanelle, a poem of nineteen lines, originated from France during 16th century. The poem is in iambic pentameter with six stanzas, where stanzas one to five rhyme in tercets and the stanza six rhymes in quatrains. The poem is presented in a means to encourage humans to rage against death and intensifies the value of ones precious life. The poem contains an autobiographical element which is the poets address to his father David John Thomas.

The poem begins with the poet's call toward the old and the weak who are in the rim of their life to fight against death. The poet ironically encourages the slenderly people using the line 'burn and rave' to rage against the upcoming dusk which is death. From stanza two the poet mentions few personalities such as wise men, good men, grave men and wild men which can also refer the poet's father's personality. In stanza two, the poet represents the stoic men whose contributions to this world is not remarkable, so he requests those men not to give chance to the night which has come to take away their life and appreciates to fulfil their incomplete plans.

"Slow and Steady Wins the Race"

This proverb holds in itself a lot of wisdom. Slow and steady wins the race is a proverb that means that if you have patience then it is certain that victory at the end is going to be yours. In doing any work or when performing any task, it is important for anyone to have patience. Patience is going to time test your efforts into anything you do. So if your efforts are strong and if you are having patience and faith, then it is certain that no one can beat you. It is just like a long distance Marathon. When running for Marathon race, the runner who is maintaining consistency with speed will be able to last for a much longer time in the race. People who want to achieve everything in a lot just in short span of time are more likely to loose in their life.
