On 10-04-2023, Ajimala, a distinguished alumna of the Department of Botany at Holy Cross College (Autonomous), Nagercoil, recently contributed as a resource person in a highly informative session. Her lecture focused on the numerous benefits of flax seeds, underscoring their importance in modern diets and health practices. Ajimala highlighted that flax seeds are a rich source of omega-3 fatty acids, which are essential for heart health. She explained how these seeds help in reducing cholesterol levels and improving digestive health due to their high fibre content. Ajimala also pointed out the role of flax seeds in reducing inflammation and supporting overall immune function. Additionally, she emphasized the presence of lignans, which have antioxidant properties and can help in cancer prevention. The alumna discussed various ways to incorporate flax seeds into daily meals, making it easy for individuals to reap their benefits. Her presentation included scientific research and personal anecdotes, making the session both engaging and educational. Ajimala's contribution as a resource person was greatly appreciated by students and faculty alike, fostering a deeper understanding of the botanical and nutritional value of flax seeds.

NAAC V Cycle Self Study Report (SSR)

Santhiya, a notable alumna of the Department of Botany at Holy Cross College (Autonomous), Nagercoil, recently delivered an engaging lecture on the "Diversity of Carnivorous Plants in Kanyakumari Wildlife Sanctuary, South Western Ghats." Her presentation delved into the unique and fascinating world of carnivorous plants found in this region, highlighting their adaptations and ecological significance. Santhiya explained how these plants have evolved to thrive in nutrient-poor soils by capturing and digesting insects and other small organisms. She showcased various species, such as Nepenthes, Drosera, and Utricularia, detailing their distinct mechanisms of prey capture and digestion. Her talk also covered the habitat preferences and distribution of these plants within the sanctuary. Santhiya emphasized the importance of conserving these rare species, as they play a crucial role in maintaining the ecological balance of their habitats. The alumna shared her research findings and field experiences, enriching the session with practical insights and vivid descriptions. Her enthusiasm and deep knowledge about the subject captivated the audience, inspiring many students to pursue further studies in botany and conservation. Santhiya's contribution as a resource person was highly appreciated, providing valuable knowledge about the unique biodiversity of the Kanyakumari Wildlife Sanctuary.
